go with him in his toil through the days of his life that God has given him under the sun.

Life is short, and God provides for us wonderful experiences that we should not just breeze by, but soak in, celebrate, and revel in the joy of it all. I still remember the father/daughter dance at both of my girls' weddings. I just wanted to make time stop as I beheld the beautiful women our little girls had become and the joy of them now starting their own family. That memory will always hold a precious place in my heart.

Ecclesiastes 2:24 There is nothing better for a person than that he should eat and drink and find enjoyment in his toil. This also, I saw, is from the hand of God,

I think Solomon was into fine foods and the enjoyment of a good meal. God gave us these amazing taste buds to let the foods we eat bring us joy, and so why not savor the beverages, foods, and desserts out there.

One key in all our savoring is to let God guide us. Kind David, Solomon's dad put it this way:

Psalm 23:1-5 The LORD is my shepherd; I shall not want. He makes me lie down in green pastures. He leads me beside still waters. He restores my soul. He leads me in paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for you are with me; your rod and your staff, they comfort me. You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies; you anoint my head with oil; my cup overflows. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of the LORD forever.

Following God opens great times to savor the moments of life. Life can get so busy. Why not make some time and take some time to savor the moments. There may be some great joy waiting for you! I think I want some ice cream now!

Church can be a great place to savor some moments with God. If you do not already have a church where you attend, we would like to invite you to Cypress Church or any of our branch churches. Our website has all the information you would need www.cypresschurch.net.

eral amendments to the original plan, and reached out to those who own the properties adjacent to the land, and found them to be supportive of it.

Item 12 would go hand in hand with Item 1, in that it would adopt resolutions to hold a Nov. 6 consolidated general municipal election regarding Item 1. This would circumvent the need to go through the usual process of petitioning and gathering signatures to get an item on the ballot.

City Attorney Anthony Taylor explained that public school organizations cannot even normally go through this process, because they cannot use public funds for political interest.

Superintendent Anne Silavs and Assistant Superintendent Tim McLellan both read statements, arguing that the district needs updating.

Silavs said the current district office was built in 1967, and that it is "nearing the end of its usable life." She emphasized that should this pass, the district would use its own funds and it would not cost taxpayers.

A PTA mom with a child at Landell Elementary said that allowing the developers to use this land would be a creative way to fund projects for the district without dipping into taxpayers' pockets.

George Pardon, a man very active in the city, argued against the issue, calling the move "a risky land deal."

A husband and wife were also against it, and both spoke about how they moved to Cypress because it was the kind of city they wanted to raise their family in. However, both said, the way the city is going now, with developments regularly popping up, Cypress is turning into something different, not the city they envisioned when they chose this as their place of residence.

Many against the measures also brought up the fact that more developments would bring more traffic and congestion to the area.

One young mother who was for the measures stated that yes, this would increase traffic, but that is inevitable. She said she does not know of any city where that is not the case as time moves along and areas modernize.

On both of these items, Councilwoman Mariellen Yarc could not vote because of where she resides.

Mayor Pro Tem Stacy Berry expressed great skepticism over both issues, and reminded her fellow Councilmembers that they are allowed to request changes and have developers go back to the drawing board and present again; she said she does not want the Council to get into a habit of automatically approving developments.

Mayor Jon Peat and Councilmen Paulo Morales and Rob Johnson were all in support of the items, however, and two items passed by vote of 3-1. The issue will now be on the November ballot for Cypress residents.

Red hot, Carrie Compere in 'The Color Purple'

By Lynda Lacayo
For the Event-News Enterprise

"Uh-Oh," the Tony Award-winning revival of "The Color Purple" is coming to the Segerstrom Center for the Arts, June 19-24. The soulful musical about the triumph of the human spirit to overcome adversity and succeed features a star-stunned cast. The touring company cast includes three leading ladies traveling straight from the Great White Way to the byways and highways of America. Adrianna Hicks movingly plays Celie, Carla R. Stewart is the tawdry nightclub temptress Shug Avery and Carrie Compere is feisty, bold and bawdy Sofia.

There are, of course, strong male roles in "The Color Purple." And it is these bad boys who highlight this story about the spirit and strength of the women. "The Color Purple" covers the 40-year history (1909-1949) of a young African-American woman who overcomes the hardships of her time and environment to find her own distinctive voice in the world.

Actress/singer Carrie Compere reprises her Broadway role of Sofia, one of the two strong-willed women who change Celie's life by encouraging her to stand up for herself. Compere's "Color Purple" Broadway stint started as a "church lady," but she became the official Sofia when the lead, Danielle Brooks, left the show. She jumped at the chance to step into Sofia's shoes and make them her own. She says, "The tour has really given me an opportunity to become more grounded in the character. My preparation for Sofia on tour was a little different that it was on Broadway. This time I had a chance to sit with it a little bit and bring integrity to the character. I wasn't rushed, I had time to cultivate what I wanted her to sound like and move like and look like."

Compere, who had read the book, seen the movie and the original Broadway production, says, "I was deeply influenced by the story and I thought it was beautiful. And then going into the Broadway revival, it became something I never, ever thought it could be. We call it the stripped-down version; we use minimal props. Director and scenic designer John Doyle was very, very intentional in doing that. It was a little scary at first, because you don't know how people will perceive it or if the story can be told through chairs, quilts, baskets and blankets. But it is a strikingly woven piece on stage, even in its simplicity. I am so proud to be in it."

The show runs the gamut from incest to infanticide to emotional degradation and lesbianism, subjects usually taboo in a musical. Compere agrees that there are controversial aspects to the show, but says, "I love that we have created a stage that allows people to interpret these things in their own way. We let audiences figure things out for themselves without pushing any rhetoric or demand that they think in a certain way. We present what it is in a truthful way."

Its theme of empowerment for women is especially relevant in today's world.

As Oprah Winfrey once said, "There's something deeply magical, connected to a spiritual force I can't explain, surrounding 'The Color Purple.'"

"All We Got to Say" is to shout out a hearty hallelujah that "The Color Purple" has been reborn. The revival is at The Segerstrom Center for the Arts, Segerstrom Hall, June 19-24. For tickets and information: The Box Office, 600 Town Center Dr., Costa Mesa; phone, 714-556-2787; and online SCFTA.org. Hours are 10 a.m.-6 p.m. daily.
